#7 FRANZ DUTZLER TROUT SCULPTURE PACKAGE

This breathtaking sculpture was donated by the Casser family after the September Croy Canyon wildfire as a thank you to the firefighters for protecting their home.

Franz has had an aptitude for art and a love for trout from an early age. But one day the aptitude and his love turned into a passion for carving exacting replicas of trout and other game fish. The passion began to focus on the rich colors and hues of the native, wild trout. It is no wonder that Franz has become an ardent conservation advocate for wild trout populations everywhere.

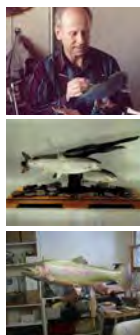

The trout sculptures, lovingly researched and carved, are so realistic they look as if they were "fresh from the stream". Real fish mounts age quickly but Franz's trout carvings will maintain their beauty forever, with a little care. Find out more about Franz and his passion for the native, wild trout.

#18 Babagoose Luxury Baby Throw

- Babagoose Luxury Baby Throw

Blankets so soft, you'd swear they're sewn by angels-

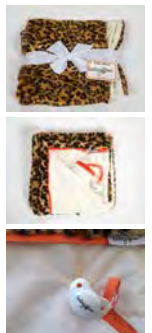

Babagoose began as an idea nearly 25 years ago when I was searching for dropped binkies being used by my own children. It seemed like I was always digging through my purse or diaper bag looking for a clean binky while trying to accomplish other tasks. I drew many ideas and sewed dozens of prototypes. After many trials, I realized the smaller blanket would stay in place over my baby in a car seat and a stroller. Smaller was better. The Babagoose Baby Throw was born.
